Pictured left to right are Melissa Liden, Rhonda Brancecum, Anna Hrynewycz, Stacey Balmes, Roberta Homatas, Maureen Lewis, Cassie Speer and Katey Dietz.

The Ladies of PONO (Property of No One) were out and about and stopped to visit Snake Alley in Burlington, Iowa. Snake Alley is a local landmark that was constructed back in 1894 to connect the residential area at the top of the bluff with the commercial district down at the bottom. Snake Alley consists of 5 half-curves, 2 quarter-curves and drops 58 feet over a total distance of 275 feet. It is crafted from curved limestone curbing and locally-fired blueclay bricks. In 1974, Snake Alley was nominated to be in the National Register of Historic Places. Ripley's Believe It or Not! has designated it as #1 in its Odd Spots Across America campaign and refers to it as "Unbelievably Crooked". What a great riding destination and a one-of-a-kind experience! PONO is a Sisterhood of female motorcycle enthusiasts that have a shared passion of riding. They bond together over the miles & form everlasting friendships that bring them all together. They strive to portray a positive image of women riders of all riding levels & believe in supporting other Lady Riders on their journey. Adventures include many fun rides & amazing events throughout the year. They are based out of Woodstock Harley Davidson.
